Subject to paragraph 3 of this article, any other disputes regarding the interpretation or application of this Convention that are not settled through diplomatic channels may be submitted to arbitration by any party or parties to the dispute by means of a written notification to the other party or parties to the dispute. If the arrangements necessary to permit this arbitration to proceed, including the selection of the arbitrator or arbitrators, have not been completed within one year of the date of receipt of the notification, any party or parties to the dispute who are not primarily responsible for the failure to complete the arrangements may submit the disputes to the International Court of Justice for decision in accordance with the Statute of the Court.

3. Each State Party may at the time of signature or ratification of this Convention or accession thereto declare that it does not consider itself bound by paragraph 2 of this article with respect to any State Party which has made such a declaration.

ANNEX TO THE CONVENTION

Each State Party to the present Convention shall designate a person to serve as a member of such a commission. It shall notify the designations to the United Nations, which shall maintain a register of persons so designated. If it does not make the designation in advance, it may do so during the conciliation procedure up to the moment at which the Conciliation Commission begins to draft the report which it is to prepare in accordance with paragraph 6 of this annex.

2. The chairman of the Commission shall be chosen by the other two members. If the other two members are unable to agree within sixty days from receipt of the request referred to in paragraph 6 of article 37 bis or if one of the parties to the dispute has not availed itself of its right to designate a member of the Commission, the Chairman shall be designated at the request of one of the parties to the dispute by the Secretary-General of the United Nations. The appointment shall be made within a period of one month from such a request. The Secretary-General shall appoint as the Chairman a qualified jurist who is not a national of any State party to the dispute.

It may recommend to the United Nations that an advisory opinion be requested from the International Court of Justice regarding the application or interpretation of the present Convention.

If the Commission is unable to obtain an agreement among the parties to the dispute on a settlement of the dispute within six months from the appointment of its Chairman, it shall prepare as soon as possible a report of its proceedings and transmit it to the parties to the dispute. The report shall include the Commission's conclusions upon the facts and questions of law and the recommendations which it has submitted to the parties, in order to facilitate a settlement of the dispute. The six months time-limit may be extended by decision of the Commission. The recommendations in the report of the Commission shall not be binding on the parties to the dispute unless all the parties to the dispute have accepted them. Nevertheless, any party to the dispute may declare unilaterally that it will abide by the recommendations in the report so far as it is concerned.

7. The Secretary-General shall provide the Commission with such assistance and facilities as it may require. The expenses of the Commission shall be borne by the United Nations.

(a) Spain: proposal for the preamble to the Convention (A/CONF.80/DC.9)

The States Parties to the present Convention,

Considering the profound transformation of the international community wrought by the decolonization process,

Considering also the present trends in the international community towards greater integration and unification between States,

Convinced of the desirability of properly regulating the effects of such transformations upon treaty relations between States,

Convinced also that the codification and progressive development of the rules relating to succession of States in respect of treaties will contribute to the achievement of the purposes of the United Nations as set forth in the Charter,

Having in mind the principles of international law embodied in the Charter of the United Nations, particularly the principles of the equal rights and self-determination of peoples, of the sovereign equality and independence of all States, of non-interference in the domestic affairs of States, of the prohibition of the threat or use of force and of respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all,

Reaffirming that any attempt to disrupt partly or completely the national unity and territorial integrity of a State or its political independence is incompatible with the purposes and principles of the Charter,

Having in mind also the provisions of the 1969 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties,

Mindful that any question relating to the legality of a succession of States is governed by international law and, in particular, by the principles of international law embodied in the Charter of the United Nations and set forth in the Declaration on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Co-operation among States in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations,

Affirming that the rules of customary international law will continue to govern questions not regulated by the present Convention,

Have agreed as follows:

(b) United Nations Council for Namibia: proposal for the preamble to the Convention (A/CONF.80/DC.13)

Taking into account General Assembly resolution 2145 (XXI) of 27 October 1966, by which the General Assembly of the United Nations terminated the Mandate of South Africa over South West Africa (Namibia) and assumed direct responsibility for the Territory until its independence,

3. Where a successor State has made a declaration in accordance with paragraph 2, then, notwithstanding article 7, the provisions of the present Convention shall apply as between the successor State and any other party to the present Convention, to the effects of the particular succession of States in question and shall, subject to paragraph 5, so apply as from the date on which the present Convention enters into force for the successor State.

4. A successor State which has made a declaration in accordance with paragraph 2 may, at the time of making the declaration or at any time thereafter, further declare it will provisionally apply the provisions of the present Convention in respect of its own succession.

5. Where a successor State has made a declaration in accordance with paragraph 4, then, notwithstanding article 7, the provisions of the present Convention shall apply provisionally, as between the successor State and any other State which is a contracting State, to the effects of the succession of States in question.

6. A declaration made in accordance with paragraph 2 or paragraph 4 shall be contained in a written notification addressed to the Secretary-General of the United Nations who shall inform the parties and the States entitled to become parties to the present Convention of the deposit with him of that notification and of its terms.

13. Signature of the final act and of the convention and other instruments.

15. At its 3rd plenary meeting, held on 14 April 1977, the Conference decided to add a supplementary item to its agenda entitled “Consideration of request of the United Nations Council for Namibia for active participation in the United Nations Conference on Succession of States in respect of Treaties” (General Assembly resolution 31/149). Under that item the President noted that operative paragraph 3 of General Assembly resolution 31/149, entitled “Action by intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations with respect to Namibia”, provides the following:

Requests all ... conferences within the United Nations system to consider granting full membership to the United Nations Council for Namibia so that it may participate in that capacity as the Administering Authority for Namibia in the work of those ... conferences.

The Conference took a decision in favour of participation as requested by the United Nations Council for Namibia.
16. At the 4th plenary meeting, held on 27 April 1977, the President stated the following:

The Conference will recall that under this item and upon the request of the delegation of the United Nations Council for Namibia referring to General Assembly resolution 31/149, it took a decision concerning that delegation's participation in the Conference. Now, in the context of the implementation of that decision, the delegation of the United Nations Council for Namibia has requested that the Conference should state explicitly that the delegation of the United Nations Council for Namibia has the right to submit proposals and amendments.

The Conference so decided.

17. The Conference adopted its "Rules of Procedure" (A/CONF.80/8) and, on the basis of a memorandum drawn up by the Secretary-General of the United Nations, "methods of work and Procedures of the Conference" (A/CONF.80/9).

18. In connexion with item 11 of its agenda (see para. 14 above), the Conference, pursuant to paragraph 3 of General Assembly resolution 31/18, had before it as the basic proposal for discussion the draft articles on succession of States in respect of treaties adopted by the International Law Commission at its twenty-sixth session (A/CONF.80/4).

19. The Conference, in addition to the relevant records of the International Law Commission and of the General Assembly, had available to it the following background documentation:

(a) An analytical compilation of comments of Governments on the final draft articles on succession of States in respect of treaties (A/CONF.80/5 and Corr.1), prepared by the Codification Division of the Office of Legal Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat;

(b) A guide for the draft articles on succession of States in respect of treaties (ST/LEG/12), prepared by the Codification Division of the Office of Legal Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat;

(c) A select bibliography on succession of States in respect of treaties (ST/LIB/SER.B/24), prepared by the Dag Hammarskjold Library of the United Nations.

20. The Conference decided that the draft articles on succession of States in respect of treaties prepared by the International Law Commission (A/CONF.80/4), as well as the additional articles, amendments and papers relating thereto, submitted by participating delegations (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.1-L.47) would be first considered by the Committee of the Whole. The texts adopted by the Committee of the Whole were referred to the Drafting Committee (A/CONF.80/DC.1-6, 8, 10-12 and 14-17) which was responsible for preparing drafts and giving advice on drafting as requested and for co-ordinating and reviewing the drafting of all texts adopted. In addition, the Committee of the Whole entrusted to the Drafting Committee (A/CONF.80/DC.7) the preparation of drafts for submission directly to the Plenary concerning the preamble and the final clauses of the future convention (A/CONF.80/DC.9 and DC.13).

21. Pursuant to a recommendation of the General Committee adopted at its meeting on 2 May 1977, the Conference, at its 5th meeting, held on 5 May 1977, decided to proceed with the consideration at the Plenary level of the articles whose examination had been completed by the Committee of the Whole. As a result of such a consideration, the Conference adopted articles 1, 3-5, 8-11 and 13-29. Such adoption was made without prejudice to any consequential adjustments that might be required in the light of decisions on articles yet to be considered. The stage reached in the consideration of the remaining articles and amendments thereto is reflected in the report of the Committee of the Whole (A/CONF.80/14).

22. At its 6th plenary meeting, held on 5 May 1977, the Conference took note of the report of the Committee of the Whole.

23. At its 7th plenary meeting, held on 6 May 1977, the Conference approved the report of its Credentials Committee (A/CONF.80/12).

24. At the same meeting the representative of Austria, referring to the decision of the General Assembly to accept the invitation extended by the Government of Austria to hold the United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties in Vienna (General Assembly resolution 31/18), stated that the invitation referred to in General Assembly resolution 31/18 would extend, as a matter of course, to a resumed session of the Conference which would make it possible for the Conference to continue its work in Vienna in 1978.

25. The annex to the present report reproduces titles and texts of articles adopted by the Conference during the period 4 April to 6 May 1977. The deliberations of the Conference are recorded in the summary records of the Conference (A/CONF.80/SR.1-SR.8) and in the summary records (A/CONF.80/C.1/SR.1-SR.36) and the report (A/CONF.80/14) of the Committee of the Whole.

RECOMMENDATION OF THE CONFERENCE

26. At its 7th plenary meeting, held on 6 May 1977, the Conference adopted the following recommendation:

The United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties,

Bearing in mind General Assembly resolution 3496 (XXX) of 15 December 1975 by which the General Assembly decided to convene a conference of plenipotentiaries in 1977 to consider the draft articles on succession of States in respect of treaties, adopted by the International Law Commission at its twenty-sixth session, and to embody the results of its work in an international convention and such other instruments as it might deem appropriate,

Having met in Vienna from 4 April to 6 May 1977, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 31/18 of 24 November 1976,

4 Ibid., pp. 21 et seq.

5 See pp. 98 et seq., sect. C.
Expressing its deep appreciation and gratitude to the Government of Austria for making possible the holding of the Conference in the capital of Austria,

Noting that due to the intrinsic complexity of the subject-matter it has not been possible for the Conference in the time available to conclude its work and to adopt an international convention and other appropriate instruments, as requested by the General Assembly in the above-mentioned resolution,

Taking note of the statement of the representative of Austria that the invitation of the Government of Austria referred to in General Assembly resolution 31/18 would extend to a resumed session of the Conference, which would make it possible for the Conference to continue its work in Vienna in 1978,

Convinced that one more session would enable it to conclude its work as envisaged by the General Assembly,

1. Adopts the report on its work for the period 4 April to 6 May 1977;
2. Requests the Secretary-General to transmit that report to the General Assembly at its thirty-second session;
3. Recommends that the General Assembly decide to reconvene the Conference in the first half of 1978, preferably in April in Vienna, for a final session of four weeks.

ANNEX

Text of Articles adopted by the Conference

Article 1. Scope of the present Convention

The present Convention applies to the effects of a succession of States in respect of treaties between States.

Article 3. Cases not within the scope of the present Convention

The fact that the present Convention does not apply to the effects of a succession of States in respect of international agreements concluded between States and other subjects of international law or in respect of international agreements not in written form shall not affect:

(a) the application to such cases of any of the rules set forth in the present Convention to which they are subject under international law independently of the Convention;
(b) the application as between States of the present Convention to the effects of a succession of States in respect of international agreements to which other subjects of international law are also parties.

Article 4. Treaties constituting international organizations and treaties adopted within an international organization

The present Convention applies to the effects of a succession of States in respect of:

(a) any treaty which is the constituent instrument of an international organization without prejudice to the rules concerning acquisition of membership and, without prejudice to any other relevant rules of the organization;
(b) any treaty adopted within an international organization without prejudice to any relevant rules of the organization.

Article 5. Obligations imposed by international law independently of a treaty

The fact that a treaty is not considered to be in force in respect of a State by virtue of the application of the present Convention shall not in any way impair the duty of that State to fulfil any obligation embodied in the treaty to which it is subject under international law independently of the treaty.

Article 8. Agreements for the devolution of treaty obligations or rights from a predecessor State to a successor State

1. The obligations or rights of a predecessor State under treaties in force in respect of a territory at the date of a succession of States do not become the obligations or rights of the successor State towards other States parties to those treaties in consequence only of the fact that the predecessor State and the successor State have concluded an agreement providing that such obligations or rights shall devolve upon the successor State.

2. Notwithstanding the conclusion of such an agreement, the effects of a succession of States on treaties which, at the date of that succession of States, were in force in respect of the territory in question are governed by the present Convention.

Article 9. Unilateral declaration by a successor State regarding treaties of the predecessor State

1. Obligations or rights under treaties in force in respect of a territory at the date of a succession of States do not become the obligations or rights of the successor State or of other States parties to those treaties in consequence only of the fact that the successor State has made a unilateral declaration providing for the continuance in force of the treaties in respect of its territory.

2. In such a case, the effects of the succession of States on treaties which, at the date of that succession of States, were in force in respect of the territory in question are governed by the present Convention.

Article 10. Treaties providing for the participation of a successor State

1. When a treaty provides that, on the occurrence of a succession of States, a successor State shall have the option to consider itself a party thereto, it may notify its succession in respect of the treaty in conformity with the provisions of the treaty or, failing any such provisions, in conformity with the provisions of the present Convention.

2. If a treaty provides that, on the occurrence of a succession of States, a successor State shall be considered as a party, the provision takes effect as such only if the successor State expressly accepts in writing to be so considered.

3. In cases falling under paragraph 1 or 2, a successor State which establishes its consent to be a party to the treaty is considered as a party from the date of the succession of States unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed.

* The Conference has not yet adopted any decision concerning the grouping of the articles in parts and sections nor on the titles of those parts and sections. See p. 134 above, sect. C, document A/CONF.80/14, paras. 243.

* No decision has been taken yet on the title of the article. See p. 110 above, sect. C, document A/CONF.80/14, para. 70.
Article 13. Questions relating to the validity of a treaty

Nothing in the present Convention shall be considered as prejudging in any respect any question relating to the validity of a treaty.

Article 14. Succession in respect of part of territory

When part of the territory of a State, or when any territory for the international relations of which a State is responsible, not being part of the territory of that State, becomes part of the territory of another State:

(a) treaties of the predecessor State cease to be in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of State relates from the date of the succession of States; and

(b) treaties of the successor State are in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates from the date of the succession of States, unless it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty to that territory would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 15. Position in respect of the treaties of the predecessor State

A newly independent State is not bound to maintain in force, or to become a party to, any treaty by reason only of the fact that at the date of the succession of States the treaty was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

Article 16. Participation in treaties in force at the date of the succession of States

1. Subject to paragraphs 2 and 3, a newly independent State may, by a notification of succession, establish its status as a party to any multilateral treaty which at the date of succession of States was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

2. Paragraph 1 does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

3. When, under the terms of the treaty or by reason of the limited number of the negotiating States and the object and purpose of the treaty, the participation of any other State in the treaty must be considered as requiring the consent of all the parties, the newly independent State may establish its status as a party to the treaty only with such consent.

Article 17. Participation in treaties not in force at the date of the succession of States

1. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a newly independent State may, by a notification of succession, establish its status as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty which is not in force if at the date of the succession of States the predecessor State was a contracting State in respect of the territory to which that succession of States relates.

2. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a newly independent State may, by a notification of succession, establish its status as a party to a multilateral treaty which enters into force after the date of the succession of States if at the date of the succession of States the predecessor State was a contracting State in respect of the territory to which that succession of States relates.

3. Paragraphs 1 and 2 do not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

4. When, under the terms of the treaty or by reason of the limited number of the negotiating States and the object and purpose of the treaty, the participation of any other State in the treaty must be considered as requiring the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States, the newly independent State may establish its status as a party or as a contracting State to the treaty only with such consent.

5. When a treaty provides that a specified number of contracting States shall be necessary for its entry into force, a newly independent State which establishes its status as a contracting State to the treaty under paragraph 1 shall be counted as a contracting State for the purpose of that provision unless a different intention appears from the treaty or is otherwise established.

Article 18. Participation in treaties signed by the predecessor State subject to ratification, acceptance or approval

1. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, if before the date of the succession of States the predecessor State signed a multilateral treaty subject to ratification, acceptance or approval and by the signature intended that the treaty should extend to the territory to which the succession of States relates, the newly independent State may ratify, accept or approve the treaty as if it had signed that treaty and may thereby become a party or a contracting State to it.

2. For the purpose of paragraph 1, unless a different intention appears from the treaty or is otherwise established, the signature by the predecessor State of the treaty is considered to express the intention that the treaty should extend to the entire territory for the international relations of which the predecessor State was responsible.

3. Paragraph 1 does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

4. When, under the terms of the treaty or by reason of the limited number of the negotiating States and the object and purpose of the treaty, the participation of any other State in the treaty must be considered as requiring the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States, the newly independent State may become a party or a contracting State to the treaty only with such consent.

Article 19. Reservations

1. When a newly independent State establishes its status as a party or as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty by a notification of succession under article 16 or 17, it shall be considered as maintaining any reservation to that treaty which was applicable at the date of the succession of States in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates unless, when making the notification of succession, it expresses a contrary intention or formulates a reservation which relates to the same subject-matter as that reservation.

2. When making a notification of succession establishing its status as a party or as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty under article 16 or 17, a newly independent State may formulate a reservation unless the reservation is one the formulation of which would be excluded by the provisions of subparagraph (a), (b) or (c) of article 19 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties.

3. When a newly independent State formulates a reservation in conformity with paragraph 2, the rules set out in articles 20, 21, 22 and 23 of the Vienna Convention of the Law of Treaties apply in respect of that reservation.

Article 20. Consent to be bound by part of a treaty and choice between differing provisions

1. When making a notification of succession under article 16 or 17 establishing its status as a party or contracting State to a multilateral treaty, a newly independent State may, if the treaty so permits, express its consent to be bound by part of the treaty or make a choice between differing provisions under the conditions laid down in the treaty for expressing such consent or making such choice.

2. A newly independent State may also exercise, under the same conditions as the other parties or contracting States, any right provided for in the treaty to withdraw or modify any consent or choice made by itself or made by the predecessor State in respect of the territory to which the succession of State relates.

3. If the newly independent State does not in conformity with paragraph 1 express its consent or make a choice, or in conformity with paragraph 2 withdraw or modify the consent or choice of the predecessor State, it shall be considered as maintaining:

(a) the consent of the predecessor State, in conformity with the treaty, to be bound, in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates, by part of that treaty; or

(b) the choice of the predecessor State, in conformity with the treaty, between differing provisions in the application of the treaty in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

Article 21. Notification of succession

1. A notification of succession in respect of a multinational treaty under article 16 or 17 shall be made in writing.

2. If the notification of succession is not signed by the Head of State, Head of Government or Minister of Foreign Affairs, the representative of the State communicating it may be called upon to produce full powers.

3. Unless the treaty otherwise provides, the notification of succession shall:

(a) be transmitted by the newly independent State to the depositary, or, if there is no depositary, to the parties or the contracting States;

(b) be considered to be made by the newly independent State on the date on which it has been received by the depositary or, if there is no depositary, on the date on which it has been received by all the parties or, as the case may be, by all the contracting States.

4. Paragraph 3 does not affect any duty that the depositary may have, in accordance with the treaty or otherwise, to inform the parties or the contracting States of the notification of succession or any communication made in connexion therewith by the newly independent State.

5. Subject to the provisions of the treaty, the notification of succession or the communication made in connexion therewith shall be considered as having been received only when the latter State has been informed by the depositary.

Article 22. Effects of a notification of succession

1. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, a newly independent State which makes a notification of succession under article 16 or article 17, paragraph 2, shall be considered a party to the treaty from the date of the succession of States or from the date of entry into force of the treaty, whichever is the later date.

2. Nevertheless, the operation of the treaty shall be considered as suspended as between the newly independent State and the other parties to the treaty until the date of making of the notification of succession except so far as that treaty may be applied provisionally in accordance with article 26 or as may be otherwise agreed.

3. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, a newly independent State which makes a notification of succession under article 17, paragraph 1, shall be considered a contracting State to the treaty from the date on which the notification of succession is made.

Article 23. Conditions under which a treaty is considered as being in force in the case of a succession of States

1. A bilateral treaty which at the date of a succession of States was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates is considered as being in force between a newly independent State and the other State party when:

(a) they expressly so agree; or

(b) by reason of their conduct they are to be considered as having so agreed.

2. A treaty considered as being in force under paragraph 1 applies in the relations between the newly independent State and the other State party from the date of the succession of States, unless a different intention appears from their agreement or is otherwise established.

Article 24. The position as between the predecessor State and the newly independent State

A treaty which under article 23 is considered as being in force between a newly independent State and the other State party is not by reason only of that fact to be considered as in force also in the relations between the predecessor State and the newly independent State.

Article 25. Termination, suspension of operation or amendment of the treaty as between the predecessor State and the other State party

1. When under article 23 a treaty is considered as being in force between a newly independent State and the other State party, the treaty:

(a) does not cease to be in force between them by reason only of the fact that it has subsequently been terminated as between the predecessor State and the other State party;

(b) is not suspended in operation as between them by reason only of the fact that its has subsequently been suspended in operation as between the predecessor State and the other State party;

(c) is not amended as between them by reason only of the fact that it has subsequently been amended as between the predecessor State and the other State party.

2. The fact that a treaty has been terminated or, as the case may be, suspended in operation as between the predecessor State and the other State party after the date of the succession of States does not prevent the treaty from being considered to be in force or, as the case may be, in operation as between the newly independent State and the other State party if it is established in accordance with article 23 that they so agreed.

3. The fact that a treaty has been amended as between the predecessor State and the other State party after the date of the succession of States does not prevent the unamended treaty from being considered to be in force under article 23 as between the newly independent State and the other State party, unless it is established that they intended the treaty as amended to apply between them.

Article 26. Multilateral treaties

1. If, at the date of the succession of States, a multinational treaty was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates and the newly independent State gives notice of its intention that the treaty should be applied provisionally in respect of its territory, that treaty shall apply provisionally between the newly independent State and any party which expressly so agrees or by reason of its conduct is to be considered as having so agreed.

2. Nevertheless, in the case of a treaty which falls within the category mentioned in article 16, paragraph 3, the consent of all the parties to such provisional application is required.

3. If, at the date of the succession of States, a multinational treaty not yet in force was being applied provisionally in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates and the newly independent State gives notice of its intention that the treaty should continue to be applied provisionally in respect of its territory, that treaty shall apply provisionally between the newly independent State and any contracting State which expressly so agrees or by reason of its conduct is to be considered as having so agreed.

4. Nevertheless, in the case of a treaty which falls within the category mentioned in article 16, paragraph 3, the consent of all the contracting States to such continued provisional application is required.
5. Paragraphs 1 to 4 do not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 27. Bilateral treaties

A bilateral treaty which at the date of a succession of States was in force or was being provisionally applied in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates is considered as applying provisionally between the newly independent State and the other State concerned when:

(a) they expressly so agree; or

(b) by reason of their conduct they are to be considered as having so agreed.

Article 28. Termination of provisional application

1. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, the provisional application of a multilateral treaty under article 26 may be terminated:

(a) by reasonable notice of termination given by the newly independent State or the party or contracting State provisionally applying the treaty and the expiration of the notice; or

(b) in the case of a treaty which falls within the category mentioned in article 16, paragraph 3, by reasonable notice of termination given by the newly independent State or all of the parties or, as the case may be, all of the contracting States and the expiration of the notice.

2. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, the provisional application of a bilateral treaty under article 27 may be terminated by reasonable notice of termination given by the newly independent State or the other State concerned and the expiration of the notice.

3. Unless the treaty provides for a shorter period for its termination or it is otherwise agreed, reasonable notice of termination shall be twelve months' notice from the date on which it is received by the other State or States provisionally applying the treaty.

4. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, the provisional application of a multilateral treaty under article 26 shall be terminated if the newly independent State gives notice of its intention not to become a party to the treaty.

Article 29. Newly independent States formed from two or more territories

1. Articles 15 to 28 apply in the case of a newly independent State formed from two or more territories.

2. When a newly independent State formed from two or more territories is considered as or becomes a party to a treaty by virtue of article 16, 17 or 23 and at the date of the succession of States the treaty was in force, or consent to be bound had been given, in respect of one or more, but not all, of those territories, the treaty shall apply in respect of the entire territory of that State unless:

(a) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the entire territory would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation;

(b) in the case of a multilateral treaty not falling under article 16, paragraph 3, or under article 17, paragraph 4, the notification of succession is restricted to the territory in respect of which the treaty was in force at the date of the succession of States, or in respect of which consent to be bound by the treaty had been given prior to that date;

(c) in the case of a multilateral treaty falling under article 16, paragraph 3, or under article 17, paragraph 4, the newly independent State and the other States parties or, as the case may be, the other contracting States otherwise agree; or

(d) in the case of a bilateral treaty, the newly independent State and the other State concerned otherwise agree.

3. When a newly independent State formed from two or more territories becomes a party to a multilateral treaty under article 18 and by the signature or signatures of the predecessor State or States it had been intended that the treaty should extend to one or more, but not all, of those territories, the treaty shall apply in respect of the entire territory of the newly independent State unless:

(a) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the entire territory would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation;

(b) in the case of a multilateral treaty not falling under article 18, paragraph 4, the ratification, acceptance or approval of the treaty is restricted to the territory or territories to which it was intended that the treaty should extend; or

(c) in the case of a multilateral treaty falling under article 18, paragraph 4, the newly independent State and the other States parties or, as the case may be, the other contracting States otherwise agree.

Chapter I

INTRODUCTION

1. In accordance with resolution 32/47 adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 8 December 1977, and pursuant to a recommendation adopted by the United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties at its 7th plenary meeting on 6 May 1977 (A/CONF.80/15, para. 26),1 at the conclusion of its 1977 session, a resumed session of the Conference opened on 31 July 1978 at the Neue Hofburg in Vienna.

2. At the resumed session of the Conference, the Committee of the Whole completed its consideration of item 11 of the agenda (A/CONF.80/7) of the Conference, namely "Consideration of the question of succession of States in respect of treaties in accordance with resolutions 3496 (XXX) and 31/18 adopted by the General Assembly on 15 December 1975 and 24 November 1976" referred to it by the Conference at its 1st plenary meeting on 4 April 1977. Also relevant to this item was General Assembly resolution 32/47. The present document contains the report of the Committee of the Whole on its consideration of that item during the resumed session of the Conference. It is, therefore, a continuation of and a supplement to the report on the work of the Committee of the Whole at the 1977 session (A/CONF.80/14).2

3. At the resumed session of the Conference, the Chairman, Mr. Fuad Riad (Egypt), and the Vice-Chairman, Mr. Jean-Pierre Ritter (Switzerland), of the Committee of the Whole, continued to exercise the office for which they were respectively elected in 1977. The Rapporteur elected at the 1977 session, Mr. Abdul Hakim Tabibi (Afghanistan) being unable to attend the resumed session of the Conference, the Committee of the Whole elected, at its 51st meeting, on 15 August 1978, Mrs. Kuljit Thakore (India) as Rapporteur of the Committee of the Whole for that session.

4. Mr. Erik Suy, Under-Secretary-General, the Legal Counsel, acted as representative of the Secretary-General of the United Nations and Mr. Valentin A. Romanov, Director of the Codification Division of the Office of Legal Affairs, as Executive Secretary of the Conference. Mr. Santiago

2 See p. 98 sect. C above.
At the resumed session, the plenary meetings and of the meetings of the Committee of the Whole, which had not yet been discussed. In the consideration of individual draft articles be applicable to its resumed meeting, on 31 July 1978.

5. In addition to the basic proposal for discussion by the Conference, namely, the draft articles on succession of States in respect of treaties adopted by the International Law Commission at its twenty-sixth session (A/CONF.80/4), and the background documentation referred to in paragraph 6 of the Report of the Committee of the Whole concerning the 1977 session of the Conference (A/CONF.80/14), the Committee of the Whole had at its disposal at the resumed session, the Report of the Conference concerning the 1977 session (A/CONF.80/15), annex II of which reproduced the Report of the Committee of the Whole referred to above, and the summary records of the plenary meetings and meetings of the Committee of the Whole held in 1977 (A/CONF.80/16).

6. At the resumed session of the Conference, the Committee of the Whole held 21 meetings between 31 July and 22 August 1978.

7. During these meetings, the Committee of the Whole continued the examination of the draft articles contained in the basic proposal and new articles proposed by participating delegations, as well as of amendments thereto, concluding the consideration of those articles the examination of which had not been completed by the Committee at the 1977 session (articles 2, 6, 7, 12 and 22 bis) as well as of those articles the examination of which had not been initiated by the Committee at the 1977 session (articles 30, 30 bis 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 bis, 37, 37 bis, 38, 39, 39 bis, 39 ter and the proposed new article 40).

8. The deliberations of the Committee of the Whole, at the resumed session of the Conference, proceeded in accordance with the methods of work and procedures approved by the Conference in 1977 (A/CONF.80/9) and a memorandum by the Secretary-General entitled “Methods of work and procedures adopted by the Conference as may be applicable to its resumed session” (A/CONF.80/17) which the Committee took note of at its 10th plenary meeting, on 31 July 1978.

9. At the resumed session, the Committee of the Whole proceeded, therefore, mainly by way of article-by-article discussion. In the consideration of individual draft articles and amendments thereto, which had not yet been considered, the procedure followed was in general the same as that followed at the 1977 session. The general remarks made in this connexion in paragraphs 10 and 11 of the Report of the Committee of the Whole concerning the 1977 session (A/CONF.80/14) are therefore equally applicable to the consideration of those articles at the resumed session. The only exceptions were the following:

(a) article 39 bis on settlement of disputes, together with an amendment thereto, was referred to the Ad Hoc Group on Peaceful Settlement of Disputes established at the resumed session by the Committee of the Whole at its 45th meeting on 4 August 1978, after an initial consideration of the subject-matter by the Committee; the Committee of the Whole considered the report submitted by the Ad Hoc Group on Peaceful Settlement of Disputes (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.60 and Corr.1) and referred the agreed text on peaceful settlement of disputes contained therein to the Drafting Committee;

(b) a proposed Conference resolution on incompatible treaty obligation, submitted following the withdrawal of a proposed new article 30 bis, was referred by the Committee of the Whole, following initial consideration, to the Informal Consultations Group chaired by the Vice-Chairman of the Committee of the Whole established at the 1977 session. The Committee of the Whole took its decision thereon, on the basis of a report submitted by the Informal Consultations Group (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.62), before referring the matter to the Drafting Committee.

10. Regarding the draft articles and related amendments the consideration of which had been initiated by the Committee of the Whole but not completed at the 1977 session, the Committee proceeded as follows:

(a) it resumed consideration of draft article 2 of the basic proposal, and amendments thereto, and thereafter referred the text for draft article 2 to the Drafting Committee; subsequently the Committee of the Whole considered the report of the Drafting Committee on article 2;

(b) it considered draft articles 6, 7 and 12 which had been referred, at the 1977 session, to the Informal Consultations Group mentioned in paragraph 9 (b) above, on the basis of the corresponding reports (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.59 and L.62) submitted by that Group, before referring the articles contained therein to the Drafting Committee; subsequently, the Committee of the Whole considered the reports of the Drafting Committee on articles 6, 7, 12 and 12 bis.

(c) with respect to article 22 bis, which had been referred at the 1977 session to the Drafting Committee, the Committee of the Whole took no action, this amendment having been withdrawn by its sponsors during the resumed session of the Conference.

11. The Committee of the Whole entrusted the Drafting Committee with the task of reporting on the division of the Convention into parts and sections and took its decisions thereon on the basis of the corresponding report of the Drafting Committee.

12. In accordance with a decision taken by the Committee of the Whole at its 1977 session, the Drafting Committee submitted directly to the Plenary of the Conference its reports on the preamble and the final clauses of the Convention. Proposals made by participating delegations, at the 1977 session and at the resumed session, concerning the preamble and the final clauses were not, therefore, discussed in the Committee of the Whole but referred to the Drafting Committee.

13. In addition to the introduction contained in Chapter I, the present report contains three chapters: Chapter II, "Consideration by the Committee of the Whole of the draft articles on succession of States in respect of treaties deferred from the 1977 session of the Conference or submitted at the resumed session"; Chapter III, "Proposals concerning the preamble and final clauses referred to the Drafting Committee"; and Chapter IV, "Parts and sections into which the draft articles are divided". An annex contains a check-list of documents submitted during the resumed session of the Committee to the Conference of the Whole by States participating in the Conference.

14. Chapter II of the present report describes the proceedings of the Committee of the Whole, article by article, in numerical order. In most cases, the articles in Chapter II are dealt with as follows: the text of the International Law Commission's draft article, or of the proposed new article, is set out; next comes the text of amendments, if any, with a brief indication of the manner in which they were disposed of; the proceedings of the Committee of the Whole are then described, making, whenever necessary, a distinction between proceedings at the 1977 session and proceedings at the resumed session.

15. Chapter III of the present report contains the text of the proposals concerning the preamble and final clauses.

16. Chapter IV of the present report deals with the parts and sections into which the draft articles are divided.

17. The present report is designed to be read in conjunction with the summary records of the Committee of the Whole relating to the resumed session. Attention is drawn to the statements made by the Chairman of the Drafting Committee when introducing texts proposed by that Committee.\(^8\)

At its 34th meeting, on 2 May 1977, the Committee of the Whole was informed by the Vice-Chairman, who had chaired the Informal Consultations Group, that consultations were still going on and that a substantive report on article 12 would be made at the resumed session of the Conference. The Committee took note of that statement.

(b) At the resumed session

(i) Consideration of the second report of the Informal Consultations Group

49. The Committee of the Whole considered the second report of the Informal Consultations Group (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.62) at its 54th and at its 55th meetings on 18 August 1978. So far as article 12 is concerned, the second report of the Informal Consultations Group stated the following:

Article 12

2. The Group recommends, by consensus, that the Committee of the Whole should add to the text of article 12 proposed by the International Law Commission a third paragraph reading as follows:

"3. The provisions of the present article do not apply to treaty obligations accepted by the predecessor State and providing for the establishment of foreign military bases on the territory to which the succession of States relates."

3. In addition, the Group recommends the Committee of the Whole to adopt a new article reading as follows, to be inserted between article 12 and article 13:

"Article 12 bis

"Nothing in the present Convention shall affect the principles of international law affirming the permanent sovereignty of every people and every State over its natural wealth and resources."

4. This recommendation was adopted by consensus, with some delegations reserving the position of their Government. One of these delegations subsequently informed the Group of its Government’s negative decision.

5. The Group wishes to emphasize the link between the proposed new article and article 12.

12 The amendment by Afghanistan sought to replace the title of article 11 “Boundary regimes” and the title of article 12 “Other territorial regimes” by a single title reading as follows: “Territorial regimes.” At its 5th plenary meeting, on 5 May 1977, the Conference adopted the text of article 11, but no decision was taken on the title of the article (see p. 140, sect. D above, A/CONF.80/15, annex, article 11).
50. At its 55th meeting the Committee of the Whole took the following decisions regarding the above-mentioned report (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.62) of the Informal Consultations Group:

By 74 votes to none, with 12 abstentions, the Committee of the Whole adopted the text for a new article 12 bis, to be inserted between article 12 and article 13, as recommended by the Informal Consultations Group, and referred it to the Drafting Committee. The Committee also agreed that the Drafting Committee should formulate a title for the article.

By 84 votes to none, with 1 abstention, the Committee of the Whole adopted a new paragraph 3 for article 12, as recommended by the Informal Consultations Group.

By 86 votes to none, with 1 abstention, the Committee adopted the text of the International Law Commission for article 12, as amended by the addition of the third paragraph recommended by the Informal Consultations Group, and referred it to the Drafting Committee. The Committee also agreed that the Drafting Committee should formulate an appropriate title for the article.

(ii) Consideration of the report of the Drafting Committee

51. At the 56th meeting of the Committee of the Whole, on 21 August 1978, the Chairman of the Drafting Committee introduced a report of the Drafting Committee (A/CONF.80/C.1/7), containing the text of article 12 and of article 12 bis adopted by the Committee (for the text see para. 52 below). The Committee of the Whole approved without a vote, the title and text of article 12 and the title and text of article 12 bis as recommended by the Drafting Committee.

(iii) Text approved by the Committee of the Whole

52. The Committee of the Whole recommends that the Conference should adopt the following texts for articles 12 and 12 bis, respectively:

Article 12. Other territorial regimes

1. A succession of States does not as such affect:

(a) obligations relating to the use of any territory, or to restrictions upon its use, established by a treaty for the benefit of any territory of a foreign State and considered as attaching to the territories in question;

(b) rights established by a treaty for the benefit of any territory and relating to the use, or to restrictions upon the use, of any territory of a foreign State and considered as attaching to the territories in question.

2. A succession of States does not as such affect:

(a) obligations relating to the use of any territory, or to restrictions upon its use, established by a treaty for the benefit of a group of States or of all States and considered as attaching to that territory;

(b) rights established by a treaty for the benefit of a group of States or of all States and relating to the use of any territory, or to restrictions upon its use, and considered as attaching to that territory.

3. The provisions of the present article do not apply to treaty obligations of the predecessor State providing for the establishment of foreign military bases on the territory to which the succession of States relates.

Article 12 bis. The present Convention and permanent sovereignty over natural wealth and resources

Nothing in the present Convention shall affect the principles of international law affirming the permanent sovereignty of every people and every State over its natural wealth and resources.

PROPOSED NEW ARTICLE 22 bis

1. Text for the proposed new article

53. An amendment seeking to insert a new article 22 bis concerning notifications by a depositary was submitted at the 1977 session by Czechoslovakia, Poland and the Ukrainian SSR (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.28). A revised version of the text was subsequently submitted at the session by Czechoslovakia, Poland, Singapore and Ukrainian SSR (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.28/Rev.1). For the texts of these proposals, see A/CONF.80/14, paragraphs 188 and 190.

2. Proceedings of the Committee of the Whole

(a) At the 1977 session

54. The Committee of the Whole considered the proposed new article 22 bis at its 29th, 31st and 32nd meetings, on 26, 28 and 29 April 1977. At its 29th meeting, the Committee of the Whole adopted a motion to close the debate on the original version of the proposed new article 22 bis (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.28) by 31 votes to 6, with 34 abstentions. It then agreed to suspend its consideration of the proposed new article 22 bis pending consultations among the co-sponsors and the delegations that had proposed drafting changes and other interested delegations.

55. At its 32nd meeting, the Committee had before it the revised version of the proposed new article 22 bis (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.28/Rev.1). It referred it to the Drafting Committee together with the suggestions that had been made orally by various delegations during the Committee's consideration of the proposed article 22 bis at the 31st and 32nd meetings. The Drafting Committee was requested to prepare a formulation taking into account the text in document A/CONF.80/C.1/L.28/Rev.1 and the referred oral suggestions relating thereto (for the text of the oral suggestions see A/CONF.80/14, foot-note 17). The Committee agreed to defer its decision on the proposed new provision until the Drafting Committee had recommended the requested formulation. At its 35th meeting, on 4 May 1977, the Committee of the Whole was informed by Chairman of the Drafting Committee that the Drafting Committee would report on article 22 bis at the resumed session of the Conference. The Committee of the Whole noted it that statement.

(b) At the resumed session

56. At the 40th meeting of the Committee of the Whole, on 2 August 1978, the Chairman of the Committee announced that the amendment contained in document
A/CONF.80/C.1/L.28/Rev.1 seeking to insert a new article 22 bis had been withdrawn by the sponsors.13

Article 30 bis. Conflicting treaty régimes

If the application of paragraphs 1 or 2 of Article 30 results in a succession to conflicting or inconsistent treaty régimes, the following rules shall apply:

(a) the successor State and the other parties to the treaties in question shall make every effort to eliminate the conflict through a process of consultation and negotiation;

(b) if the conflict has not been resolved within a period of one year from the date on which the conflict was brought to the attention of the successor State or other parties to the treaties in question, the inconsistent or incompatible obligations shall cease to be in force;

(c) termination of inconsistent or incompatible obligations pursuant to subparagraph (b) of this Article shall apply with respect to the whole treaty unless the treaty otherwise provides or the parties otherwise agree;

(d) termination of inconsistent or incompatible obligations pursuant to subparagraph (b) of this Article may apply to particular clauses where:

(1) the said clauses are separable from the remainder of the treaty with regard to their application;

(2) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that acceptance of those clauses was not an essential basis of the consent of the other party or parties to be bound by the treaty as a whole; and

(3) continued performance of the remainder of the treaty would not be unjust.

66. Subsequently, the United States of America proposed a draft Conference resolution on incompatible treaty obligations and rights (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.51/Rev.2) reading as follows:

Considering that a unifying of States may give rise to incompatible obligations and rights under treaties, and

Recognizing the desirability of resolving such questions through a process of consultation and negotiation,

Recommends that if a unifying of States gives rise to incompatible obligations or rights under treaties, the successor State and the other States parties to the treaties in question make every effort to resolve the matter through a process of consultation and negotiation.

(a) the States concerned otherwise agree; or

(b) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the successor State would be incompatible with its object and purpose or would radically change the conditions for the operation of the treaty.

3. Notwithstanding paragraph 1, if a part of the territory of a State separates from it and becomes a State in circumstances which are essentially of the same character as those existing in the case of the formation of a newly independent State, the successor State shall be regarded for the purposes of the present articles in all respects as a newly independent State.

PROPOSED NEW ARTICLE 39 bis

1. Text of the proposed new article

144. At the 1977 session, the United States of America proposed the insertion of a new article 39 bis (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.38), the text of which was reproduced in A/CONF.80/14, para. 242. At the resumed session, the United States of America submitted a revised version of the amendment (A/CONF.80/C.1/L.38/Rev.1) reading as follows:

Article 39 bis. Settlement of disputes

1. Subject to paragraph 2 of the article, any dispute regarding the interpretation or application of this Convention that is not settled through diplomatic channels may be submitted to arbitration by any party or parties to the dispute by means of a written notification to the other party or parties to the dispute. If the arrangements necessary to permit this arbitration to proceed, including the selection of the arbitrator or arbitrators, have not been completed within one year of the date of receipt of the notification, any party or parties to the disputes may submit the dispute to the International Court of Justice for decision in accordance with the Statute of the Court.

2. Each State Party may at the time of signature or ratification of this Convention or accession thereto declare that it does not consider itself bound by paragraph 1 of this article. The other States Parties shall not be bound by paragraph 1 of this article with respect to any State Party which has made such a declaration.

3. Any State Party which has made a declaration in accordance with paragraph 2 of this article may at any time withdraw that declaration by notification to the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

4. When a dispute concerning the interpretation or application of this Convention includes a State Party which has made a declaration under paragraph 2, if the dispute is not settled through negotiations or by other agreed means, any party to the dispute may submit it to the conciliation procedure in the Annex to the Convention by submitting a request to that effect to the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

ANNEX TO THE CONVENTION

Conciliation Procedure

1. Each conciliation commission shall be composed of three members: two members who shall be appointed respectively by the States on each side of the dispute, and a Chairman appointed in accordance with paragraph 2 of this Annex. Each State Party to the present Convention shall designate in advance a person to serve as a member of such a commission. It shall notify the designations to the United Nations, which shall maintain a register of persons so designated. If it does not make the designation in advance, it may do so during the conciliation procedure up to the moment at which the Commission begins to draft the report which it is to prepare in accordance with paragraph 6 of this Annex.

2. The Chairman of the Commission shall be chosen by the other two members. If the other two members are unable to agree within sixty days from receipt of the request referred to in paragraph 4 of article 39 bis or if one of the parties to the dispute has not availed itself of its right to designate a member of the Commission, the Chairman shall be designated at the request of one of the parties to the dispute by the Secretary-General of the United Nations. The appointment shall be made within a period of one month from such a request. The Secretary-General shall appoint as the Chairman a qualified jurist who is not a national of any State party to the dispute.

3. Any vacancy shall be filled in the manner prescribed for the initial appointment.

4. The Commission shall function as soon as the Chairman has been appointed even if its composition is incomplete.

5. The Commission shall establish its own rules of procedure and shall reach its decisions and recommendations by a majority vote. It may recommend to the United Nations that an advisory opinion be requested from the International Court of Justice regarding the application or interpretation of the present Convention.

6. If the Commission is unable to obtain an agreement among the parties to the dispute on a settlement of the dispute within six months from the appointment of its Chairman, it shall prepare as soon as possible a report of its proceedings and transmit it to the parties to the dispute. The report shall include the Commission’s conclusions upon the facts and questions of law and the recommendations which it has submitted to the parties to the dispute in order to facilitate a settlement of the dispute. The six months time limit may be extended by decision of the Commission. The recommendations in the report of the Commission shall not be binding on the parties to the dispute unless all the parties to the dispute have accepted them. Nevertheless, any party to the dispute may declare unilaterally that it will abide by the recommendations in the report so far as it is concerned.

7. The Secretary-General shall provide the Commission with such assistance and facilities as it may require. The expenses of the Commission shall be borne by the United Nations.

(b) any one of the parties to a dispute concerning the interpretation or application of any of the other provisions of this Convention may by a written notification to the other party or parties to the dispute, submit it to arbitration. The arbitration award shall be final and binding on the parties to the dispute. If the arrangements necessary to permit this arbitration to proceed, including the selection of the arbitrator or arbitrators, have not been completed within one year of the date of receipt of the notification, any party or parties to the dispute which are not primarily responsible for the failure to complete the arrangements may submit the dispute to the International Court of Justice for decision in accordance with the Statute of the Court.

2. Preamble of the Convention

DOCUMENT A/CONF.80/21

[Original: Arabic/English/French/Russian/Spanish]
[19 August 1978]

The Drafting Committee, in accordance with the decision taken by the Committee of the Whole at its 21st meeting on 20 April 1977, submits the following text for the preamble of the Convention:

The States Parties to the present Convention,

Considering the profound transformation of the international community brought about by the decolonization process,

Considering also that other factors may lead to cases of succession of States in the future,

Convinced, in these circumstances, of the need for the codification and progressive development of the rules relating to succession of States in respect of treaties as a means for ensuring greater juridical security in international relations,

Noting that the principles of free consent, good faith and pacta sunt servanda are universally recognized,

Emphasizing that the consistent observance of general multilateral treaties which deal with the codification and progressive development of international law and those the object and purpose of which are of interest to the international community as a whole is of special importance for the strengthening of peace and international co-operation,

Having in mind the principles of international law embodied in the Charter of the United Nations, such as the principles of the equal rights and self-determination of peoples, of the sovereign equality and independence of all States, of non-interference in the domestic affairs of States, of the prohibition of the threat or use of force, and of universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all,

Recalling that respect for the territorial integrity and political independence of any State is required by the Charter of the United Nations,

Bearing in mind the provisions of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties of 1969,

Bearing also in mind article 73 of that Convention,

Affirming that questions of the law of treaties other than those that may arise from a succession of States are governed by the relevant rules of international law, including those rules of customary international law which are embodied in the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties of 1969,

Affirming that the rules of customary international law will continue to govern questions not regulated by the provisions of the present Convention,

Have agreed as follows:

Resolutions adopted by the United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties

Resolution concerning Namibia

The United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties,

Taking note of the statement made by the Chairman of the delegation of the United Nations Council for Namibia during the resumed session of the Conference, *

Taking into account United Nations General Assembly resolution 2145 (XXII) of 27 October 1966, by which the General Assembly decided to terminate the Mandate of South Africa over Namibia and by which the United Nations assumed direct responsibility for the Territory until independence, and General Assembly resolution 2248 (S-V) of 19 May 1967, by which the United Nations Council for Namibia was established and entrusted with the responsibility of administering the Territory until independence,

Recalling the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice of 21 June 1971 which declared that the continued presence of South Africa in Namibia being illegal, South Africa is under obligation to withdraw its administration from the Territory and thus put an end to its illegal occupation of the Territory,

Further recalling the relevant resolutions of the United Nations, in particular Security Council resolutions 385 (1976) which reaffirmed the territorial integrity and unity of Namibia and 432 (1978) which took note of paragraph 7 of General Assembly resolution 32/9 D (1977) declaring that Walvis Bay is an integral part of Namibia,

Resolves that the relevant articles of the Vienna Convention on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties shall be interpreted, in the case of Namibia, in conformity with United Nations resolutions on the question of Namibia;

Further resolves that South Africa is not the predecessor State of the future independent State of Namibia.

Resolution relating to Incompatible Treaty Obligations and Rights arising from a Unit ing of States

The United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties,

Considering that a uniting of States may give rise to incompatible obligations and rights as a result of the differing treaty régimes applicable to the two or more States which unite,

Recognizing the desirability of resolving such questions through a process of consultation and negotiation,

Recommends that a uniting of States gives rise to incompatible obligations or rights under treaties, the successor State and the other States parties to the treaties in question make every effort to resolve the matter by mutual agreement.

Tribute to the Special Rapporteurs and the Expert Consultant

The United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties.

Having adopted the Vienna Convention on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties on the basis of the draft articles prepared by the International Law Commission, Resolves to express to Sir Humphrey Waldock, Special Rapporteur of the International Law Commission, and to Sir Francis Vallat, Special Rapporteur of the International Law Commission and Expert Consultant to the Conference, its deep appreciation of the invaluable contribution they have made to the codification and progressive development of the rules of international law on succession of States in respect of treaties.

Tribute to the International Law Commission

The United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties,

Having adopted the Vienna Convention on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties on the basis of the draft articles prepared by the International Law Commission,

Resolves to express its deep gratitude to the International Law Commission for its outstanding contribution to the codification and progressive development of the law of succession of States in respect of treaties.

Tribute to the People and to the Federal Government of Austria

The United Nations Conference on Succession of States in Respect of Treaties.

VIENNA CONVENTION
ON SUCCESSION OF STATES
IN RESPECT OF TREATIES

(Document A/CONF.80/31*)

The States Parties to the present Convention,

Considering the profound transformation of the international community brought about by the decolonization process,

Considering also that other factors may lead to cases of succession of States in the future,

Convinced, in these circumstances, of the need for the codification and progressive development of the rules relating to succession of States in respect of treaties as a means for ensuring greater juridical security in international relations,

Noting that the principles of free consent, good faith and pacta sunt servanda are universally recognized,

Emphasizing that the consistent observance of general multilateral treaties which deal with the codification and progressive development of international law and those the object and purpose of which are of interest to the international community as a whole is of special importance for the strengthening of peace and international co-operation,

Having in mind the principles of international law embodied in the Charter of the United Nations, such as the principles of the equal rights and self-determination of peoples, of the sovereign equality and independence of all States, of non-interference in the domestic affairs of States, of the prohibition of the threat or use of force, and of universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all,

Recalling that respect for the territorial integrity and political independence of any State is required by the Charter of the United Nations,

Bearing in mind the provisions of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties of 1969,

Bearing also in mind article 73 of that Convention,

Affirming that questions of the law of treaties other than those that may arise from a succession of States are governed by the relevant rules of international law, including those rules of customary international law which are embodied in the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties of 1969,

Affirming that the rules of customary international law will continue to govern questions not regulated by the provisions of the present Convention,

Have agreed as follows:

Part I. General provisions

Article 1. Scope of the present Convention

The present Convention applies to the effects of a succession of States in respect of treaties between States.

Article 2. Use of terms

1. For the purposes of the present Convention:

(a) "treaty" means an international agreement concluded between States in written form and governed by international law, whether embodied in a single instrument or in two or more related instruments and whatever its particular designation;

(b) "succession of States" means the replacement of one State by another in the responsibility for the international relations of territory;

(c) "predecessor State" means the State which has been replaced by another State on the occurrence of a succession of States;

(d) "successor State" means the State which has replaced another State on the occurrence of a succession of States;

(e) "date of the succession of States" means the date upon which the successor State replaced the predecessor State in the responsibility for the international relations of the territory to which the succession of States relates;

(f) "newly independent State" means a successor State the territory of which immediately before the date of the succession of States was a dependent territory for the international relations of which the predecessor was responsible;

(g) "notification of succession" means in relation to a multilateral treaty any notification, however phrased or named, made by a successor State expressing its consent to be considered as bound by the treaty;

(h) "full powers" means in relation to a notification of succession or any other notification under the present Convention a document emanating from the competent authority of a State designating a person or persons to represent the State for communicating the notification of succession or, as the case may be, the notification;

(i) "ratification", "acceptance" and "approval" mean in each case the international act so named whereby a State establishes on the international plane its consent to be bound by a treaty;

(j) "reservation" means a unilateral statement, however phrased or named, made by a State when signing, ratifying, accepting, approving or acceding to a treaty or when making a notification of succession to a treaty, whereby it purports to exclude or to modify the legal effect of certain provisions of the treaty in their application to that State;

(k) "contracting State" means a State which has consented to be bound by the treaty, whether or not the treaty has entered into force;

(l) "party" means a State which has consented to be bound by the treaty and for which the treaty is in force;
(m) "other State party" means in relation to a successor State any party, other than the predecessor State, to a treaty in force at the date of a succession of States in respect of the territory to which that succession of States relates;

(n) "international organization" means an intergovernmental organization.

2. The provisions of paragraph 1 regarding the use of terms in the present Convention are without prejudice to the use of those terms or to the meanings which may be given to them in the internal law of any State.

Article 3. Cases not within the scope of the present Convention

The fact that the present Convention does not apply to the effects of a succession of States in respect of international agreements concluded between States and other subjects of international law or in respect of international agreements not in written form shall not affect:

(a) the application to such cases of any of the rules set forth in the present Convention to which they are subject under international law independently of the Convention;

(b) the application as between States of the present Convention to the effects of a succession of States in respect of international agreements to which other subjects of international law are also parties.

Article 4. Treaties constituting international organizations and treaties adopted within an international organization

The present Convention applies to the effects of a succession of States in respect of:

(a) any treaty which is the constituent instrument of an international organization without prejudice to the rules concerning acquisition of membership and without prejudice to any other relevant rules of the organization;

(b) any treaty adopted within an international organization without prejudice to any relevant rules of the organization.

Article 5. Obligations imposed by international law independently of a treaty

The fact that a treaty is not considered to be in force in respect of a State by virtue of the application of the present Convention shall not in any way impair the duty of that State to fulfil any obligation embodied in the treaty to which it is subject under international law independently of the treaty.

Article 6. Cases of succession of States covered by the present Convention

The present Convention applies only to the effects of a succession of States occurring in conformity with international law and, in particular, the principles of international law embodied in the Charter of the United Nations.

Article 7. Temporal application of the present Convention

1. Without prejudice to the application of any of the rules set forth in the present Convention to which the effects of a succession of States would be subject under international law independently of the Convention, the Convention applies only in respect of a succession of States which has occurred after the entry into force of the Convention except as may be otherwise agreed.

2. A successor State may, at the time of expressing its consent to be bound by the present Convention or at any time thereafter, make a declaration that it will apply the provisions of the Convention in respect of its own succession of States which has occurred before the entry into force of the Convention in relation to any other contracting State or Party to the Convention which makes a declaration accepting the declaration of the successor State. Upon the entry into force of the Convention as between the States making the declarations or upon the making of the declaration of acceptance, whichever occurs later, the provisions of the Convention shall apply to the effects of the succession of States as from the date of that succession of States.

3. A successor State may at the time of signing or of expressing its consent to be bound by the present Convention make a declaration that it will apply the provisions of the Convention provisionally in respect of its own succession of States which has occurred before the entry into force of the Convention in relation to any other signatory or contracting State which makes a declaration accepting the declaration of the successor State; upon the making of the declaration of acceptance, those provisions shall apply provisionally to the effects of the succession of States as between those two States as from the date of that succession of States.

4. Any declaration made in accordance with paragraph 2 or 3 shall be contained in a written notification communicated to the depositary, who shall inform the Parties and the States entitled to become Parties to the present Convention of the communication to him of that notification and of its terms.

Article 8. Agreements for the devolution of treaty obligations or rights from a predecessor State to a successor State

1. The obligations or rights of a predecessor State under treaties in force in respect of a territory at the date of a succession of States do not become the obligations or rights of the successor State towards other States parties to those treaties by reason only of the fact that the predecessor State and the successor State have concluded an agreement providing that such obligations or rights shall devolve upon the successor State.

2. Notwithstanding the conclusion of such an agreement, the effects of a succession of States on treaties which, at the date of that succession of States, were in force in respect of the territory in question are governed by the present Convention.
Article 9. Unilateral declaration by a successor State regarding treaties of the predecessor State

1. Obligations or rights under treaties in force in respect of a territory at the date of a succession of States do not become the obligations or rights of the successor State or of other States parties to those treaties by reason only of the fact that the successor State has made a unilateral declaration providing for the continuance in force of the treaties in respect of its territory.

2. In such a case, the effects of the succession of States on treaties which, at the date of that succession of States, were in force in respect of the territory in question are governed by the present Convention.

Article 10. Treaties providing for the participation of a successor State

1. When a treaty provides that, on the occurrence of a succession of States, a successor State shall have the option to consider itself a party to the treaty, it may notify its success in respect of the treaty in conformity with the provisions of the treaty or, failing any such provisions, in conformity with the provisions of the present Convention.

2. If a treaty provides that, on the occurrence of a succession of States, a successor State shall be considered as a party to the treaty, that provision takes effect as such only if the successor State expressly accepts in writing to be so considered.

3. In cases falling under paragraph 1 or 2, a successor State which establishes its consent to be a party to the treaty is considered as a party from the date of the succession of States unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed.

Article 11. Boundary régimes

A succession of States does not as such affect:

(a) a boundary established by a treaty; or

(b) obligations and rights established by a treaty and relating to the régime of a boundary.

Article 12. Other territorial régimes

1. A succession of States does not as such affect:

(a) obligations relating to the use of any territory, or to restrictions upon its use, established by a treaty for the benefit of any territory of a foreign State and considered as attaching to the territories in question;

(b) rights established by a treaty for the benefit of any territory and relating to the use, or to restrictions upon the use, of any territory of a foreign State and considered as attaching to the territories in question.

2. A succession of States does not as such affect:

(a) obligations relating to the use of any territory, or to restrictions upon its use, established by a treaty for the benefit of a group of States or of all States and considered as attaching to that territory;

(b) rights established by a treaty for the benefit of a group of States or of all States and relating to the use of any territory, or to restrictions upon its use, and considered as attaching to that territory.

3. The provisions of the present article do not apply to treaty obligations of the predecessor State providing for the establishment of foreign military bases on the territory to which the succession of States relates.

Article 13. The present Convention and permanent sovereignty over natural wealth and resources

Nothing in the present Convention shall affect the principles of international law affirming the permanent sovereignty of every people and every State over its natural wealth and resources.

Article 14. Questions relating to the validity of a treaty

Nothing in the present Convention shall be considered as prejudging in any respect any question relating to the validity of a treaty.

Part II. Succession in respect of part of territory

Article 15. Succession in respect of part of territory

When part of the territory of a State, or when any territory for the international relations of which a State is responsible, not being part of the territory of that State, becomes part of the territory of another State:

(a) treaties of the predecessor State cease to be in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates from the date of the succession of States; and

(b) treaties of the successor State are in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates from the date of the succession of States, unless it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty to that territory would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Part III. Newly independent States

SECTION I. GENERAL RULE

Article 16. Position in respect of the treaties of the predecessor State

A newly independent State is not bound to maintain in force, or to become a party to, any treaty by reason only of the fact that at the date of the succession of States the treaty was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

SECTION 2. MULTILATERAL TREATIES

Article 17. Participation in treaties in force at the date of the succession of States

1. Subject to paragraphs 2 and 3, a newly independent State may, by a notification of succession, establish its status as a party to any multilateral treaty which at the date of the succession of States was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

2. Paragraph 1 does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

3. When, under the terms of the treaty or by reason of the limited number of the negotiating States and the object
and purpose of the treaty, the participation of any other State in the treaty must be considered as requiring the consent of all the parties, the newly independent State may establish its status as a party to the treaty only with such consent.

Article 18. Participation in treaties not in force at the date of the succession of States

1. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a newly independent State may, by a notification of succession, establish its status as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty which is not in force if at the date of the succession of States the predecessor State was a contracting State in respect of the territory to which that succession of States relates.

2. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a newly independent State may, by a notification of succession, establish its status as a party to a multilateral treaty which enters into force after the date of the succession of States if at the date of the succession of States the predecessor State was a contracting State in respect of the territory to which that succession of States relates.

3. Paragraphs 1 and 2 do not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

4. When, under the terms of the treaty or by reason of the limited number of the negotiating States and the object
and purpose of the treaty, the participation of any other State in the treaty must be considered as requiring the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States, the newly independent State may become a party or a contracting State to the treaty only with such consent.

Article 19. Participation in treaties signed by the predecessor State subject to ratification, acceptance or approval

1. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, if before the date of the succession of States the predecessor State signed a multilateral treaty subject to ratification, acceptance or approval and by the signature intended that the treaty should extend to the territory to which the succession of States relates, the newly independent State may ratify, accept or approve the treaty as if it had signed that treaty and may thereby become a party or a contracting State to it.

2. For the purpose of paragraph 1, unless a different intention appears from the treaty or is otherwise established, the signature by the predecessor State of a treaty is considered to express the intention that the treaty should extend to the entire territory for the international relations of which the predecessor State was responsible.

3. Paragraph 1 does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

4. When, under the terms of the treaty or by reason of the limited number of the negotiating States and the object
and purpose of the treaty, the participation of any other State in the treaty must be considered as requiring the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States, the newly independent State may formulate a reservation unlesS when making the notification of succession, it expresses a contrary intention or formulates a reservation which relates to the same subject-matter as that reservation.

Article 20. Reservations

1. When a newly independent State establishes its status as a party or as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty by a notification of succession under article 17 or 18, it shall be considered as maintaining any reservation to that treaty which was applicable at the date of the succession of States in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates unless, when making the notification of succession, it expresses a contrary intention or formulates a reservation which relates to the same subject-matter as that reservation.

2. When making a notification of succession establishing its status as a party or as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty under article 17 or 18, a newly independent State may formulate a reservation unless the reservation is one the formulation of which would be excluded by the provisions of subparagraph (a), (b) or (c) of article 19 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties.

3. When a newly independent State formulates a reservation in conformity with paragraph 2, the rules set out in articles 20 to 23 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties apply in respect of that reservation.

Article 21. Consent to be bound by part of a treaty and choice between differing provisions

1. When making a notification of succession under article 17 or 18 establishing its status as a party or contracting State to a multilateral treaty, a newly independent State may, if the treaty so permits, express its consent to be bound by part of the treaty or make a choice between differing provisions under the conditions laid down in the treaty for expressing such consent or making such choice.
2. A newly independent State may also exercise, under the same conditions as the other parties or contracting States, any right provided for in the treaty to withdraw or modify any consent expressed or choice made by itself or by the predecessor State in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

3. If the newly independent State does not in conformity with paragraph 1 express its consent or make a choice, or in conformity with paragraph 2 withdraw or modify the consent or choice of the predecessor State, it shall be considered as maintaining:

(a) the consent of the predecessor State, in conformity with the treaty, to be bound, in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates, by part of that treaty; or

(b) the choice of the predecessor State, in conformity with the treaty, between differing provisions in the application of the treaty in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

Article 22. Notification of succession

1. A notification of succession in respect of a multilateral treaty under article 17 or 18 shall be made in writing.

2. If the notification of succession is not signed by the Head of State, Head of Government or Minister for Foreign Affairs, the representative of the State communicating it may be called upon to produce full powers.

3. Unless the treaty otherwise provides, the notification of succession shall:

(a) be transmitted by the newly independent State to the depositary, or, if there is no depositary, to the parties or the contracting States;

(b) be considered to be made by the newly independent State on the date on which it is received by the depositary, or, if there is no depositary on the date on which it is received by all the parties or, as the case may be, by all the contracting States.

4. Paragraph 3 does not affect any duty that the depositary may have, in accordance with the treaty or otherwise, to inform the parties or the contracting States of the notification of succession or any communication made in connection therewith by the newly independent State.

5. Subject to the provisions of the treaty, the notification of succession or the communication made in connection therewith shall be considered as received by the State for which it is intended only when the latter State has been informed by the depositary.

Article 23. Effects of a notification of succession

1. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, a newly independent State which makes a notification of succession under article 17 or article 18, paragraph 2, shall be considered a party to the treaty from the date of the succession of States or from the date of entry into force of the treaty, whichever is the later date.

2. Nevertheless, the operation of the treaty shall be considered as suspended as between the newly independent State and the other parties to the treaty until the date of making of the notification of succession except in so far as that treaty may be applied provisionally in accordance with article 27 or as may be otherwise agreed.

3. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, a newly independent State which makes a notification of succession under article 18, paragraph 1, shall be considered a contracting State to the treaty from the date on which the notification of succession is made.

SECTION 3. BILATERAL TREATIES

Article 24. Conditions under which a treaty is considered as being in force in the case of a succession of States

1. A bilateral treaty which at the date of a succession of States was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates is considered as being in force between a newly independent State and the other State party when:

(a) they expressly so agree; or

(b) by reason of their conduct they are to be considered as having so agreed.

2. A treaty considered as being in force under paragraph 1 applies in the relations between the newly independent State and the other State party from the date of the succession of States, unless a different intention appears from their agreement or is otherwise established.

Article 25. The position as between the predecessor State and the newly independent State

A treaty which under article 24 is considered as being in force between a newly independent State and the other State party is not by reason only of that fact to be considered as being in force also in the relations between the predecessor State and the newly independent State.

Article 26. Termination, suspension of operation or amendment of the treaty as between the predecessor State and the other State party

1. When under article 24 a treaty is considered as being in force between a newly independent State and the other State party, the treaty:

(a) does not cease to be in force between them by reason only of the fact that it has subsequently been terminated as between the predecessor State and the other State party;

(b) is not suspended in operation as between them by reason only of the fact that it has subsequently been suspended in operation as between the predecessor State and the other State party;

(c) is not amended as between them by reason only of the fact that it has subsequently been amended as between the predecessor State and the other State party.

2. The fact that a treaty has been terminated or, as the case may be, suspended in operation as between the predecessor State and the other State party after the date of the succession of States does not prevent the treaty from being considered to be in force or, as the case may be, in operation as between the newly independent State and the other State party if it is established in accordance with article 24 that they so agreed.

3. The fact that a treaty has been amended as between the predecessor State and the other State party after the date of the succession of States does not prevent the unamended treaty from being considered to be in force under article 24 as between the newly independent State and the other State party, unless it is established that they intended the treaty as amended to apply between them.

SECTION 4. PROVISIONAL APPLICATION

Article 27. Multilateral treaties

1. If, at the date of the succession of States, a multilateral treaty was in force in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates and the newly independent State gives notice of its intention that the treaty should be applied provisionally in respect of its territory, that treaty shall apply provisionally between the newly independent State and any party which expressly so agrees or by reason of its conduct is to be considered as having so agreed.

2. Nevertheless, in the case of a treaty which falls within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the consent of all the parties to such provisional application is required.

3. If, at the date of the succession of States, a multilateral treaty not yet in force was being applied provisionally in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates and the newly independent State gives notice of its intention that the treaty should continue to be applied provisionally in respect of its territory, that treaty shall apply provisionally between the newly independent State and any contracting State which expressly so agrees or by reason of its conduct is to be considered as having so agreed.

4. Nevertheless, in the case of a treaty which falls within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the consent of all the contracting States to such continued provisional application is required.

5. Paragraphs 1 to 4 do not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the newly independent State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 28. Bilateral treaties

A bilateral treaty which at the date of a succession of States was in force or was being provisionally applied in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates is considered as applying provisionally between the newly independent State and the other State concerned when:

(a) they expressly so agree; or
(b) by reason of their conduct they are to be considered as having so agreed.

Article 29. Termination of provisional application

1. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, the provisional application of a multilateral treaty under article 27 may be terminated:

(a) by reasonable notice of termination given by the newly independent State or the party or contracting State provisionally applying the treaty and the expiration of the notice; or
(b) in the case of a treaty which falls within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, by reasonable notice of termination given by the newly independent State or the other State concerned and the expiration of the notice.

2. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, the provisional application of a bilateral treaty under article 28 may be terminated by reasonable notice of termination given by the newly independent State or the other State concerned and the expiration of the notice.

3. Unless the treaty provides for a shorter period of its termination or it is otherwise agreed, reasonable notice of termination shall be twelve months' notice from the date on which it is received by the other State or States provisionally applying the treaty.

4. Unless the treaty otherwise provides or it is otherwise agreed, the provisional application of a multilateral treaty under article 27 shall be terminated if the newly independent State gives notice of its intention not to become a party to the treaty.

SECTION 5. NEWLY INDEPENDENT STATES FORMED FROM TWO OR MORE TERRITORIES

Article 30. Newly independent States formed from two or more territories

1. Articles 16 to 29 apply in the case of a newly independent State formed from two or more territories.

2. When a newly independent State formed from two or more territories is considered as or becomes a party to a treaty by virtue of article 17, 18 or 24 and at the date of the succession of States the treaty was in force, or consent to be bound had been given, in respect of one or more, but not all, of those territories, the treaty shall apply in respect of the entire territory of that State unless:

(a) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the entire territory would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation;

(b) in the case of a multilateral treaty not falling under article 17, paragraph 3, or under article 18, paragraph 4, the notification of succession is restricted to the territory in respect of which the treaty was in force at the date of the
succession of States, or in respect of which consent to be bound by the treaty had been given prior to that date;

(c) in the case of a multilateral treaty falling under article 17, paragraph 3, or under article 18, paragraph 4, the newly independent State and the other States parties or, as the case may be, the other contracting States otherwise agree; or

(d) in the case of a bilateral treaty, the newly independent State and the other State concerned otherwise agree.

3. When a newly independent State formed from two or more territories becomes a party to a multilateral treaty under article 19 and by the signature or signatures of the predecessor State or States it had been intended that the treaty should extend to one or more, but not all, of those territories, the treaty shall apply in respect of the entire territory of the newly independent State unless:

(a) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the entire territory would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation;

(b) in the case of a multilateral treaty not falling under article 19, paragraph 4, the ratification, acceptance or approval of the treaty is restricted to the territory or territories to which it was intended that the treaty should extend; or

(c) in the case of a multilateral treaty falling under article 19, paragraph 4, the newly independent State and the other States parties or, as the case may be, the other contracting States otherwise agree.

Part IV. Uniting and separation of States

Article 31. Effects of a uniting of States in respect of treaties in force at the date of the succession of States

1. When two or more States unite and so form one successor State, any treaty in force at the date of the succession of States in respect of any of them continues in force in respect of the successor State unless:

(a) the successor State and the other State party or States parties otherwise agree; or

(b) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

2. Any treaty continuing in force in conformity with paragraph 1 shall apply only in respect of the part of the territory of the successor State in respect of which the treaty was in force at the date of the succession of State unless:

(a) in the case of a multilateral treaty not falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State makes a notification that the treaty shall apply in respect of its entire territory;

(b) in the case of a multilateral treaty falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State and the other States parties otherwise agree; or

(c) in the case of a bilateral treaty, the successor State and the other State party otherwise agree.

3. Paragraph 2 (a) does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the entire territory of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 32. Effects of a uniting of States in respect of treaties not in force at the date of the succession of States

1. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a successor State falling under article 31 may, by making a notification, establish its status as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty which is not in force if, at the date of the succession of States, any of the predecessor States was a contracting State to the treaty.

2. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a successor State falling under article 31 may, by making a notification, establish its status as a party to a multilateral treaty which enters into force after the date of the succession of States if, at that date, any of the predecessor States was a contracting State to the treaty.

3. Paragraphs 1 and 2 do not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

4. If the treaty is one falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State may establish its status as a party or as a contracting State to the treaty only with the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States.

5. Any treaty to which the successor State becomes a contracting State or a party in conformity with paragraph 1 or 2 shall apply only in respect of the part of the territory of the successor State in respect of which consent to be bound by the treaty had been given prior to the date of the succession of States unless:

(a) in the case of a multilateral treaty not falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State indicates in its notification made under paragraph 1 or 2 that the treaty shall apply in respect of its entire territory; or

(b) in the case of a multilateral treaty falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State and all the parties or, as the case may be, all the contracting States otherwise agree.

6. Paragraph 5 (a) does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the entire territory of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose... of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 33. Effects of a uniting of States in respect of treaties signed by a predecessor State subject to ratification, acceptance or approval

1. Subject to paragraphs 2 and 3, if before the date of the succession of States one of the predecessor States had signed a multilateral treaty subject to ratification, acceptance or approval, a successor State falling under article 31 may ratify, accept or approve the treaty as if it had signed that treaty and may thereby become a party or a contracting State to it.

2. Paragraph 1 does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

3. If the treaty is one falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State may become a party or a contracting State to the treaty only with the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States.

4. Any treaty to which the successor State becomes a party or a contracting State in conformity with paragraph 1 shall apply only in respect of the part of the territory of the successor State in respect of which the treaty was signed by one of the predecessor States unless:

(a) in the case of a multilateral treaty not falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State when ratifying, accepting or approving the treaty gives notice that the treaty shall apply in respect of its entire territory;

(b) in the case of a multilateral treaty falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State and all the parties or, as the case may be, all the contracting States otherwise agree.

5. Paragraph 4 (a) does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the entire territory of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 34. Succession of States in cases of separation of parts of a State

1. When a part or parts of the territory of a State separate to form one or more States, whether or not the predecessor State continues to exist:

(a) any treaty in force at the date of the succession of States in respect of the entire territory of the predecessor State continues in force in respect of each successor State so formed;

(b) any treaty in force at the date of the succession of States in respect only of that part of the territory of the predecessor State which has become a successor State continues in force in respect of that successor State alone.

2. Paragraph 1 does not apply if:

(a) the States concerned otherwise agree; or

(b) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 35. Position if a State continues after separation of part of its territory

When, after separation of any part of the territory of a State, the predecessor State continues to exist, any treaty which at the date of the succession of States was in force in respect of the predecessor State continues in force in respect of its remaining territory unless:

(a) the States concerned otherwise agree;

(b) it is established that the treaty related only to the territory which has separated from the predecessor State; or

(c) it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the predecessor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

Article 36. Participation in treaties not in force at the date of the succession of States in cases of separation of parts of a State

1. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a successor State falling under article 34, paragraph 1, may, by making a notification, establish its status as a contracting State to a multilateral treaty which is not in force if, at the date of the succession of States, the predecessor State was a contracting State to the treaty in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

2. Subject to paragraphs 3 and 4, a successor State falling under article 34, paragraph 1, may, by making a notification, establish its status as a party to a multilateral treaty which enters into force after the date of the succession of States if at that date the predecessor State was a contracting State to the treaty in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates.

3. Paragraphs 1 and 2 do not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

4. If the treaty is one falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State may establish its status as a party or as a contracting State to the treaty only with the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States.

Article 37. Participation in cases of separation of parts of a State in treaties signed by the predecessor State subject to ratification, acceptance or approval

1. Subject to paragraphs 2 and 3, if before the date of the succession of States the predecessor State had signed a multilateral treaty subject to ratification, acceptance or approval and the treaty, if it had been in force at that date, would have applied in respect of the territory to which the succession of States relates, a successor State falling under article 34, paragraph 1, may ratify, accept or approve the treaty as if it had signed that treaty and may thereby become a party or a contracting State to it.

2. Paragraph 1 does not apply if it appears from the treaty or is otherwise established that the application of the treaty in respect of the successor State would be incompatible with the object and purpose of the treaty or would radically change the conditions for its operation.

3. If the treaty is one falling within the category mentioned in article 17, paragraph 3, the successor State may become a party or a contracting State to the treaty only with the consent of all the parties or of all the contracting States.

Article 38. Notifications

1. Any notification under articles 31, 32 or 36 shall be made in writing.

2. If the notification is not signed by the Head of State, Head of Government or Minister for Foreign Affairs, the representative of the State communicating it may be called upon to produce full powers.

3. Unless the treaty otherwise provides, the notification shall:

   (a) be transmitted by the successor State to the depositary, or, if there is no depositary, to the parties or the contracting States;

   (b) be considered to be made by the successor State on the date on which it is received by the depositary or, if there is no depositary, on the date on which it is received by all the parties or, as the case may be, by all the contracting States.

4. Paragraph 3 does not affect any duty that the depositary may have, in accordance with the treaty or otherwise, to inform the parties or the contracting States of the notification or any communication made in connection therewith by the successor State.

5. Subject to the provisions of the treaty, such notification or communication shall be considered as received by the State for which it is intended only when the latter State has been informed by the depositary.

Part VI. Settlement of disputes

Article 41. Consultation and negotiation

If a dispute regarding the interpretation or application of the present Convention arises between two or more Parties to the Convention, they shall, upon the request of any of them, seek to resolve it by a process of consultation and negotiation.

Article 42. Conciliation

If the dispute is not resolved within six months of the date on which the request referred to in article 41 has been made, any party to the dispute may submit it to the conciliation procedure specified in the Annex to the present Convention by submitting a request to that effect to the Secretary-General of the United Nations and informing the other party or parties to the dispute of the request.

Article 43. Judicial settlement and arbitration

Any State at the time of signature or ratification of the present Convention or accession thereto or at any time thereafter, may, by notification to the depositary, declare that, where a dispute has not been resolved by the application of the procedures referred to in articles 41 and 42, that dispute may be submitted for a decision to the International Court of Justice by a written application of any party to the dispute, or in the alternative to arbitration, provided that the other party to the dispute has made a like declaration.

Article 44. Settlement by common consent

Notwithstanding articles 41, 42 and 43, if a dispute regarding the interpretation or application of the present Convention arises between two or more Parties to the Convention, they may by common consent agree to submit it to the International Court of Justice, or to arbitration, or to any other appropriate procedure for the settlement of disputes.

Article 45. Other provisions in force for the settlement of disputes

Nothing in articles 41 to 44 shall affect the rights or obligations of the Parties to the present Convention under any provisions in force binding them with regard to the settlement of disputes.

Part VII. Final provisions

Article 46. Signature

The present Convention shall be open for signature by all States until 28 February 1979 at the Federal Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Austria, and subsequently, until 31 August 1979, at United Nations Headquarters in New York.

Article 47. Ratification

The present Convention is subject to ratification. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

Article 48. Accession

The present Convention shall remain open for accession by any State. The instruments of accession shall be deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

Article 49. Entry into force

2. For each State ratifying or acceding to the Convention after the deposit of the fifteenth instrument of ratification or accession, the Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day after deposit by such State of its instrument of ratification or accession.

Article 50. Authentic texts

The original of the present Convention, of which the Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall be deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the undersigned Plenipotentiaries, being duly authorized thereto by their respective Governments, have signed the present Convention.

DONE at Vienna, this twenty-third day of August, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-eight.

ANNEX

1. A list of conciliators consisting of qualified jurists shall be drawn up and maintained by the Secretary-General of the United Nations. To this end, every State which is a Member of the United Nations or a Party to the present Convention shall be invited to nominate two conciliators, and the names of the persons so nominated shall constitute the list. The term of a conciliator, including that of any conciliator nominated to fill a casual vacancy, shall be five years and may be renewed. A conciliator whose term expires shall continue to fulfill any function for which he shall have been chosen under the following paragraph.

2. When a request has been made to the Secretary-General under article 42, the Secretary-General shall bring the dispute before a conciliation commission constituted as follows:

The State or States constituting one of the parties to the dispute shall appoint:

(a) one conciliator of the nationality of that State or of one of those States, who may or may not be chosen from the list referred to in paragraph 1; and

(b) one conciliator not of the nationality of that State or of any of those States, who shall be chosen from the list.

The State or States constituting the other party to the dispute shall appoint two conciliators in the same way. The four conciliators chosen by the parties shall be appointed within sixty days following the date on which the Secretary-General receives the request.

The four conciliators shall, within sixty days following the date of the appointment of the last of them, appoint a fifth conciliator chosen from the list, who shall be chairman.

If the appointment of the Chairman or of any of the other conciliators has not been made within the period prescribed above for such appointment, it shall be made by the Secretary-General within sixty days following the expiry of that period. The appointment of the Chairman may be made by the Secretary-General either from the list or from the membership of the International Law Commission. Any of the periods within which appointments must be made may be extended by agreement between the parties to the dispute.

Any vacancy shall be filled in the manner prescribed for the initial appointment.

3. The Conciliation Commission shall decide its own procedure. The Commission, with the consent of the parties to the dispute, may invite any Party to the present Convention to submit to it its views orally or in writing. Decisions and recommendations of the Commission shall be made by a majority vote of the five members.

4. The Commission may draw the attention of the parties to the dispute to any measures which might facilitate an amicable settlement.

5. The Commission shall hear the parties, examine the claims and objections, and make proposals to the parties with a view to reaching an amicable settlement of the dispute.

6. The Commission shall report within twelve months of its constitution. Its report shall be deposited with the Secretary-General and transmitted to the parties to the dispute. The report of the Commission, including any conclusions stated therein regarding the facts or questions of law, shall not be binding upon the parties and it shall have no other character than that of recommendations submitted for the consideration of the parties in order to facilitate an amicable settlement of the dispute.

7. The Secretary-General shall provide the Commission with such assistance and facilities as it may require. The expenses of the Commission shall be borne by the United Nations.

ANNEX 16
Evidence in International Arbitration

Robert Pietrowski

The Parties may present any proof that they judge useful, and the Court is entirely free to take the evidence into account to the extent that it deems it pertinent.\(^{(1)}\)

M. Huber

IN MANY respects Judge Huber's statement, made in 1925 in connection with the amendment of the rules of the Permanent Court of International Justice,\(^{(2)}\) still holds true today with respect to much of the practice and procedure relating to evidence in international arbitration. Subject to the principle that arbitrations should be conducted in an orderly and efficient manner that ensures equal treatment of the parties, the parties to an international arbitration are generally free to submit any evidence they wish in order to prove the facts necessary to establish their respective cases. It is within the discretion of the tribunal to evaluate the evidence submitted.

I. The Evolution of Common Principles and Rules

The purpose of evidence in proceedings before international arbitral tribunals, as in proceedings before municipal courts, is to assist the tribunal in determining the truth as to disputed issues of fact. Like municipal courts, international tribunals have rules of procedure that govern the submission of evidence and its evaluation by the tribunal. Such rules, however, are less restrictive than those typically found in municipal law systems.

International arbitration may occur between sovereign states (or other international persons), between states, and between private parties. The conduct of the arbitration may be governed by international law, by municipal law — that is, the 'national' or 'local' law of the place of the arbitration — or by a combination thereof. Regardless of the nature of the parties and the law applicable to the arbitration, certain principles and rules pertaining to evidence will in principle be applicable to any arbitration. These principles and rules have evolved from the process of international arbitration over the past two centuries. They have been agreed to in numerous bilateral arbitration treaties and conventions and have been codified in various multilateral conventions, model laws and model rules, and in the rules of international organizations and institutions, such that they are now generally applicable to all international arbitrations unless the parties agree otherwise.

This is not to say that there is uniformity in the treatment of evidence in international arbitration. Clearly, such is not the case. For example, a tribunal is less likely to order the production of evidence in an arbitration between states than in a commercial arbitration between private parties, due to the respect accorded the dignity of sovereign states.\(^{(3)}\) And discovery is likely to be more liberal in an arbitration where the parties, counsel and arbitrators are all from common law jurisdictions than in an arbitration where all of the players are from civil law jurisdictions.

Nevertheless, there are a number of principles and rules of evidence that are generally applicable to all international arbitrations irrespective of the nature of the parties and the law governing the conduct of the arbitration. Thus, regardless of whether the parties are states or private parties and whether the arbitration is governed by international law or municipal law, the procedure of most international tribunals is characterized by an absence of restrictive rules governing the form, submission and admissibility of evidence. The evaluation of the evidence is entirely within the discretion of the tribunal. The proceedings usually consist of a written phase followed by an oral phase. The tribunal has authority to set time limits and make procedural orders. Each party has the burden of proof with respect to the facts necessary to establish its case and is required to produce the evidence upon which it relies for that purpose. In addition, the tribunal in its discretion may order the production of further evidence. Priority is given to documentary evidence, and arbitration tribunals generally admit all documents submitted by the parties.
Tribunals also generally admit any testimonial evidence offered by the parties. Affidavits and written witness statements are common in international practice. Oral testimony by witnesses is usually directed by counsel under the control of the tribunal, and is subject to cross-examination by opposing counsel as well as questions by the tribunal. Experts may be called at the instance of the tribunal or the parties to express opinions on technical issues or other matters requiring special expertise. Experts are expected to be independent and objective, but the tribunal is not bound by the expert's opinion. The tribunal or its experts may visit the place where the dispute arose to gather evidence or acquaint the tribunal in a general way with the factual background of the case. Certain types of evidence are privileged. The evidence of interested persons is usually admissible. Evidence obtained during settlement negotiations is not.

These procedures and practices represent a combination of features drawn from the common law and the civil law. For example, the freedom from technical, restrictive rules of evidence is derived from the civil law. The common law rules of admissibility concerning competence, relevance and materiality have developed largely in the context of jury trials and thus have no place in international arbitration. The priority given to documentary evidence in international procedure is also derived from the civil law, which has historically been distrustful of oral evidence. In the common law system, facts are generally proved by testimonial evidence and even documentary evidence is usually introduced by oral testimony.

Other features of international practice are derived from the common law, such as the practice of allowing witnesses to be examined by counsel and cross-examined by opposing counsel under the direction of the tribunal. In civil law systems, the examination of witnesses is conducted by the tribunal. Also, the use of ex parte affidavits and written witness statements is derived from the common law.

Much of this combination of civil law procedures and common law procedures has been codified in such instruments as the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules, the various arbitration rules of the Permanent Court of Arbitration and the International Bar Association's Rules on the Taking of Evidence in International Commercial Arbitration.

Although these principles and rules of evidence are generally applicable to all international arbitrations, the reported case law discussing these principles and rules consists principally of awards in arbitrations between states and arbitrations between states and private parties. This is because international commercial arbitration remains largely a confidential process. Most international commercial arbitration awards are not published or are published in a redacted format. As Pierre Lalive has observed:

> The confidential character of arbitrations, together with their multiplicity and variety, constitutes a tremendous obstacle to a true knowledge of the subject. We must be aware of the fact that our experience is necessarily limited and our data partial. (1)

Arbitrations between states, on the other hand, as well as arbitrations between states and private parties, are not generally confidential and the awards in such arbitrations are usually published. These awards contain a wealth of jurisprudence concerning the procedural law applicable to international arbitration, including the law of evidence, and are often referred to by tribunals in international commercial arbitrations.

The use of arbitration to resolve disputes between states can be traced back to ancient Greece, while commercial arbitration between private parties originated in the guilds and trade associations of medieval Europe. The process of arbitration as we know it today, however, is generally considered to have begun with the Treaty of 1794, which provided for the arbitration of certain disputes between Great Britain and the USA. The Treaty provided for the establishment of three mixed commissions and contained provisions concerning the appointment and replacement of commissioners; the appointment of agents as intermediaries between the parties and the tribunal; the taking of evidence, both documentary and testimonial; the evaluation of evidence; the applicable law; authentication of documents; decisions by majority vote; and the final and binding nature of the commissions' decisions.

As Ralston observed in his classic work on the history of arbitration:

> The modern era of arbitral or judicial settlement of international disputes, by common accord among all writers upon the subject, dates from the signing on November 19, 1794, of the Jay Treaty between Great Britain and the United States. Prior to this time arbitrations were irregular and spasmodic; from this
